IN THE DEEP

Put your best face forward with Porcelain, the Face Spa. Tucked away in a discreet row of shophouses in Outram Park, it has the fortune of being small yet intimate. There's nothing particularly feminine about it, but neither is it stripped of any warmth whatsoever – candles light the narrow staircases and walkways, and doors open to reveal small rooms. They might be a squeeze if you're living large, but what they lack in space, they make up for in service. Attentive from the very start, the therapists explain every step thoroughly, and in a rather singsong note. The OxyRevive Treatment targets the usual suspects of dullness, unevenness, sagginess and other minor imperfections. Its procedure is pretty standard, but what sets this facial apart from others is its seamless transition from one step to another. So gentle is the therapist's touch that you might find yourself suddenly waking from your slumber and wondering what the hell went on. Rest assured – one glance in the mirror and the result is a gratifying one, with compliments to follow suit.
