art of skin refinement

banish the blemishes

I thought that by the time I hit my thirties, I'd be free of acne woes. Unfortunately, I still get the odd zit nearly every month, which is why I'm loving the Balance HydraClear Gel ($108) from local facial salon Porcelain, The Face Spa. This clear, fragrance-free gel calms my skin and moisturises without feeling heavy. Best of all, it has willow bark and witch hazel extracts, as well as pepper seed and tea tree oil to reduce bacterial growth and gently get rid of dead skin cells so my pores stay clean. I've been using the gel at night after my serums and it has kept my skin blemish-free without drying it out or causing more oil secretion.

Quintessential Facial

Research has shown that most mobile phones are dirtier than the average toilet handle. Yet tech addicts have them plastered to their faces all the time. Repair any damage to your skin—unclog pores, clear acne, whiteheads, and blackheads, and even reduce those fine lines—with this comprehensive facial ($200). The 90-minute session involves exfoliation, the use of LED lamps, and custom blended masks and serums.
